A Meeting Called to Discuss Plans to Contest Saturday's Election Results Is an Awful Fizzle -Only Five There.

It was nearly morning before the vote in the High school district was all counted, and it was 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon before the judges in the Centerville district had completed their labors. The official results only conthe close estimate made in the Standard yesterday morning of the great victory achieved by the people of Butte over the secret order and the High school ring. The secret order people are still kicking, and a meeting of a few citizens was held at the city hall last evening to devise ways and means of contesting the school election. It was decided to endeavor to have the county commissioners throw out every Many Moons

The meeting of citizens called for last The meeting of citizens called for last night at the city hall to contest the school election proved a lamentable failure. Only five men were present, and after kicking some and discussing things, nothing definite was done. Mayor Thompson was present and expressed himself freely on the subject of Saturday's "outrage." He declared that if 50 deputies were not enough to preserve peace at the polls to-day he would have 500. It is to be hoped that Mr. Thompson will instruct his deputies and special policemen to confine themselyes to preserving order and not themselves to preserving order and not go to electioneering and buildozing as they have done in elections heretofore.

The secret-order people may congratulate themselves that there was not a full vote polled yesterday. Had there been the majority against them would have been not less than 4,000.

REMEMBER THE EXPLOSION. And Remember How the A. P. As. Rewarded the Survivors.

warded the Survivors.

Remember the surviving heroes of the powder explosion of Jan. 15, 1895.

Remember Flannery and Magee, the two survivors of a slaughtered fire department. They were discharged when the Thompson administration went into power because they were not members of the A. P. A. Did Cook even raise his voice in protest against this secret order outrage? Harrington did.

Remember Officer Steinborn, who turned in the fire alarm on that fatal night. For six months he was laid up in the hospital from injuries received at the explosion. When he reported for duty the A. P. A. administration refused him his old job. Three times the police commimttee rejected his application.

Has not Butte had enough of an oath bound society which overlooks heroes and faithful service as qualifications for office and gives the positions only to members of the order?

KEEP COOL.

The A. P. As. Have Prepared 300 Chal lenges to Delay the Voting.

Ienges to Delay the Voting.

Three hundred challenges have been been prepared by the A. P. As, for today's election. They are mostly in the First and Third wards, which are considered to be democratic strongholds. The sole object is to delay voting in those wards in the hope that many voters will be shut out.

Keep cool. No oath-bound order exists that can deprive a man entitled to vote of his franchise in free America. There is no need for words or argument or anger. Those who are challenged should have two reputable citizens at hand to testify to their qualitens at hand to testify to their quali-fications. Quarreling will only prolong the delay. Let the challenges be made and the voters sworn in where the challenges are ill-founded as is the case in almost all instances.

The cruiser Jones of Wilmington, N. C. The cruiser left here suddenly yesterday afternoon upon information from the Spanish vice consul that an expedition would leave Fernandina at 10 o'clock. The quick action of the Vesuvius prevented their plans from being carried out.

But the Officers Haven't Captured the Rest of His Gang.

BOLD, BAD BAND OF ROBBERS

Rode to Town Horseback, Stole What They Could and Hid Their Booty in a Subterranean Cache.

County and city officers have suceeded in breaking up a most desperate and successful gang of robbers tracking them to their hiding place in the mountains, and have landed one of its leading members, a bad man known "Texas Charley," in the county jail. But for the fact that the rest of the thieves secured a hint in some way of the coming of the officers, they would now be keeping Charley company in his confinement. They are all on the run. however, and knowing that the officers who they are and have discovered their rendezvous it is not expected that they will commit any further depredations redations.

They have been operating in Butte for some time, and while they made a specialty of stealing horses they never overlooked anything that came their way, and they are responsible for the disappearance of property which will probably reach several thousand dolars in value. It was their practice to make their raids on the city during the night on horseback, and before daymake their raids on the city during the night on horseback, and before day-light they would be safely hidden away at their home in the mountains. They were so expert in the thieving business and covered their tracks so thoroughly that it was only recently that the officers got onto their trail. Their rendezvous was located in the hills not far from Feeley's station, about nine miles from Butte in a straight line but about from Butte in a straight line, but about 18 miles by road and trail. There they had a large subterranean stable, in which they concealed their stolen which they concealed their stolen horses and other misappropriated property until they could dispose of it. The cunningly-devised cache is surrounded by a number of cabins in which the robbers lived and, to all appearances, their occupation was merely that of ordinary woodchoppers.

Several days ago a Shetland pony, belonging to Leys, the jeweler, was stolen, and it was learned that it had been temporarily placed in an old stable south of the Colorado smelter. Deputy Sheriffs O'Neill and Evans and City Detective Meiklejohn then proceeded to watch the cabin to await the arrival of Texas Charley, who was to take the Texas Charley, who was to take the pony to the cave in the mountains. Charley was known to be a desperate man, and he had made his brags that he would not be taken alive, so the officers exercised unusual caution. At a late hour on Friday night Charley came after the pony, and just as he reached out his hand to untie the halter he was covered with three revolvers and com-manded to throw up his hands. He was taken completely by surprise, and be-fore he recovered the use of his facul-ties he was handcuffed and a Colt's 41-unfortunately, as subsequent events proved, the trip was made in a wagon. They came within sight of the camp at a distance of about 500 yards, and a moment later a man ran out of one o the cabins and jumped on a horse that was already saddled and bridled, and rode straight up the side of the moun-tain into the timber as fast as the horse could carry him. He was ordered to stop, but paid no heed to the com-mand. Four shots were then fired at him with Winchesters, but none of the The Bermuda was outside the three-mile limit and under the British flag, so that the commander of the Vesuvius had no authority to detain her.

The Bermuda apparently had no cargo on board, standing very high out of the water. The Jones was excerted into port Fernandina and turned over to Collector of Customs Baltzell, who placed a deputy aboard. Nothing was found either in the cache or the cabins, all of the stolen cache or the cabins, all of the stolen property having been removed. It is supposed that the suspicions of the desperadoes were aroused from the fact that Charley did not return with the stolen pony. The officers know most of the members of the gang, and it is possible that some of them may be apprehended within a few days. The fact that their leader is in jail and that their lair has been discovered, gives the officers a great deal of satisfaction. officers a great deal of satisfaction.
